The Stuart Brown Partnership (SBP) has been fitting out offices since its inception, in 1989. We have built up an extensive working history with many professions, and our Client List now includes some of the largest and most prestigious names in many fields.

However, we at SBP also pride ourselves on our ability to offer the same level of professional services, attention to detail and client loyalty to all of our smaller projects too.

We have been lucky enough to be involved with quite a few smaller projects over the last decade or so, and have built up a great deal of expertise in this area. We have had to tailor our approach from that used on our larger projects, as economies of scale demand.

Through the experience gained from such projects, we are now able to offer the same quality project management services to projects of all sizes, from just a few thousand sq ft to the hundreds of thousands of sq ft that our largest projects require.

Our diversification and adaptability is clearly shown in our small projects client list, which includes the Worshipful Company of Clockmakers, BAE Systems, Strutt & Parker, Lovells and BAE Systems.

The work we have undertaken has included all aspects of modern construction, refurbishment with the client in situ, a quick yet thorough re-fit of a floor, design and build and in the case of the Clockmakers Museum, installation of priceless artefacts and historical timepieces.

A brief summary of some of our smaller projects are outlined over the next few pages.

THE WORSHIPFUL COMPANY OF CLOCKMAKERS: The Clockmaker's Museum

We project managed the complete fit out of part of the Guildhall to become the new home to the Clockmaker's Museum. Their collection contains numerous priceless artefacts, which ensured that the project had to be absolutely secure as well as faultless.

The project was completed on time, to budget but perhaps most importantly, breakage free!
